

The Ohio State University Libraries' Diversity and Inclusion Committee
Invites you to our Annual Diversity Lecture

BY ANY MEANS NECESSARY:

Malcolm X in Life, Death, and Historical Memory

By Hasan Kwame Jeffries, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of African-American History
The Ohio State University History Department

Forty years after the death of Malcolm X, his influence is still motivating and influencing individuals all around the world in their struggles for respect and human rights. In this lecture, History Professor Hasan Kwame Jeffries sheds some light on the life of Al-Hajj Malik Al-Shabbaz, better known as Malcolm X. His talk will include a discussion of the controversy generated by Professor Manning Marable's book Malcolm X: A life of Reinvention and will feature audios of some of Malcolm's most important speeches.

February 21, 2012 at 3:30 p.m.
Thompson Library, 11th Floor

library.osu.edu

292-OSUL