OHIO STATE
ATHLETICS
1879 - 1959

By
was 47-3-9. And against Big Ten competition during that period—Michigan having returned to the fold in 1918—the mark was 35 won, 1 tied, and only 10 lost. Not counting 1918, it was 25-1-7.

In 1914, Wilce’s second season, the Varsity defeated three Ohio opponents and broke even in four Conference games. The Ohio victims were Ohio Wesleyan, 16 to 2; Oberlin, 39 to 0; and Case, 7 to 6. For the first time the team played four Conference games. Indiana was defeated, 13 to 3, but Illinois won, 37 to 0. Wisconsin edged the Buckeyes, 7 to 6, but Northwestern lost again, 27 to 0.*

A year later the showing was still better—five wins, one loss and one tie. By now it had become customary for Ohio Wesleyan to open the season, and it was defeated, 19 to 6. Oberlin was next, 25 to 0, and then Case, 14 to 0. Indiana was nosed out, 10 to 9. Then came the game with Illinois which was one of the early Conference thrillers on Ohio Field. The Illini had lost several key men by injuries but hardly anyone expected the home team to hold them to a 3-to-3 tie.

Next came Wisconsin at Madison and the Ohioans were all hopped up as a result of the Illinois game. There was a heavy fall of snow at Camp Randall, but in any case the invading Ohioans were outgunned, 21 to 0. In the final game, however, Northwestern was beaten for the third straight time, 34 to 0.

Ohio State football fortunes rose to a peak in 1916 when “Chic” Harley, a Columbus East High product, entered the picture as a sophomore. This success continued in 1917 and was resumed in 1919. Harley won All-American recognition all three years for his outstanding performance at halfback. He had the further distinction of captaining the 1918 and 1919 teams although he was away from the campus in military service the former season. By an odd coincidence, the Columbus East High teams on which he played lost only one game, his final high school game. And the only losing game in which he played in three Varsity seasons was the last game in 1919 in which Ohio State led 7 to 6 with only seconds to play but Illinois made a field goal in the closing moments to win 9 to 7 and shut Ohio State out of a third title. Harley was not only Ohio State’s first recognized All-American but won his “O” in four sports. For a time he held the indoor 50-yard dash mark.

To open the 1916 season Ohio Wesleyan was disposed of, 20 to 0, and Oberlin was crushed, 128 to 0, the largest score ever made by Ohio

* A girl cheerleader, Clara Rutherford, appeared at one of the early games in the new era “decked out,” she recalls, in the visiting team’s colors. But on the Monday following she was called before the dean of women. That ended the innovation.
So many All-American teams are chosen each year by various agencies—newspaper and other—that it is difficult to keep track. The list generally recognized as authoritative is that compiled for the Official N.C.A.A. Football Guide. By this reckoning, Ohio State has had 37 men so honored. Two of them, "Chic" Harley and Wes Fesler, each won this honor three times. By positions, the list follows:

Similarly, three Ohio Staters, Harley, Fesler and former Coach Jack Wilce, have been elected to the College Football Hall of Fame. Fesler and Wilce were chosen in 1954 and Harley in 1951, one of the first group so honored.
