COLUMBUS, Ohio -- Six retired faculty and staff members, a former trustee, and a deceased professor will be honored by Ohio State University for their long service to the institution.

The university's Board of Trustees on Friday (4/1) approved the renaming of the Poultry Administration Building, 674 W. Lane Ave., as Everett L. Dakan Hall to honor the late Professor Dakan and the renaming of Women's Commons, 251 W. 12th Ave., as June F. Kennedy Commons to honor the university's first food service director.

Kennedy, associate professor emeritus of human nutrition and food management, served as food service director from 1939 until her retirement in 1959. She first joined the faculty in 1934. Kennedy now lives in Lutheran Senior City, 955 Parkview (43219).
